RHINELANDER, WISCONSIN

FATHER VAUGHAN.

The Great Dramatic Orator. His Lecture Work and His Charities.

Altho Father Vaughan has been a priest but six years, he stands foremost among the eloquent speakers of the Church. He is the only priest in America authorized by his Bishop to devote all his time to the lecture platform. He is widely known on the Lyceum platform and has been engaged for over one hundred and sixty lectures this season by Lyceum committees alone. In addition to these engagements, he filled as many engagements as there was time for, under the auspices of Catholic Churches and Societies. He is compelled to refuse over one hundred engagements every year, and is more in demand than any other regular lecturer on the platform. This work brings him in contact with thousands of people of very creed and religion. He has strong, charming personality both off and on the platform.

As a dramatic Orator Father Vaughan has no superior, his interpretation of Shakespearean characters is equal to that of the greatest actors of the day. He is rapidly gaining a national reputation, and his lecture work has received the personal approbation of Archbishops Ireland and Keane. Wherever he has appeared, he is known as "The Great Dramatic Orator."

Father Vaughan gives the entire proceeds of his lectures to charity. A part of his money is devoted to a fund for the purpose of establishing in Wisconsin a school for poor boys. This is an incorporated fund under the laws of the state of Wisconsin and has for its honorary president the Bishop of Father Vaughan's diocese, Rt. Rev. James Schwebach of LaCrosse, Wis., and the acting president is Rev. A. B. C. Dunne of Eau Claire, Wis. The school has been established at Altoon, Wis. and will be opened this fall with over one hundred boys in attendance.

A PLEASANT AFFAIR.

One of the most pleasant social features of the winter was the dance of the Calumet Club of this City given at Gilligan's Hall, Friday evening. The number in attendance was just sufficient to allow proper space for dancing and the floor was not over crowded. The inspiration was furnished by the Military Orchestra which rendered a number of the latest selections. During the evening, refreshments were served by two little girls who presided over a table in the front of the hall. Everybody enjoyed themselves immensely and in the early hours of the morning when the party disbanded, all were loud in their praises of the splendid evening afforded them by the Calumet Club.

It is the intention of the members to give another affair of this kind, which will be held in the Armory before the advent of Lent.

NEW MILEAGE BOOKS.

The recent action of the members of the Western Passenger Association in regard to mileage books became effective January 5, and travelers in general will welcome the new regulations. Local agents in common with the other agents of all lines in the Western Passenger Association have been notified to begin the sale of the W. P. A. 2000-mile books for $50.00 instead of $60.00 as formerly. In the past the sum of $10.00 has been retained on the cover of the book and in the future the rebate will be $9.50. The advantage of the new arrangement lies in the difference in the amount to be laid out at first, the ultimate cost of the book being the same.

The credential 4000-mile book has been reduced to 3000 miles. The price will remain practically the same, proportionally to the difference in the number of miles, of course. The 1000-mile book will be sold under the same conditions as formerly.

DR. J. E. JOHNSTON DEAD.

Dr. J. E. Johnston of Tomahawk died last week in the Sacred Heart hospital in that City. He had been ill only a few days with acute pneumonia. The funeral was held Friday from the Congregational Church in Tomahawk and was in charge of the Masonic lodge. Dr. Johnston was forty-two years of age. He at one time practiced in Woodboro and during his residence there, made frequent visits to Rhinelander and had many friends here. He was a graduate of the Medical Department of the Michigan University.

NEW DEPOT FOR ANTIGO.

Antigo is to have a new Northwestern depot, work on the building of which will begin about April 1. A new depot has been a want long felt in our sister City and the fact that it is to be at last realized comes as pleasant news to her citizens. The structure will be of brick and stone, two stories in height and six hundred feet in length. When completed, Antigo will have one of the finest depots in Wisconsin, outside of Milwaukee.

RINER RESIGNS.

Gives Up Position With Northwestern To Go In Business Here.

W. C. Riner, who for the last two years or more, has served as agent for the Northwestern Railway Company in this City, has resigned his position. We understand that he will be succeeded by Mr. Scott, who is at present stationed at New London. During the time which Mr. Riner has been in the company's employ he has proved a most efficient official, working both in the interests of the Company and its patrons. His resignation is greatly regretted by our business people.

We are glad to state, however, that Mr. Riner does not intend to leave Rhinelander but will continue to make this City his home. He will engage in business here, but along just what line, he is undecided. Several good openings have been presented to him and he will make his intentions known later. His many friends in the City wish him future success.

WILL RECOVER.

A. Kamke, the man who was shot at Sunday, Monday night, January 7th, in St. Mary's hospital and is recovering as rapidly as the nature of his injury will permit. The bullet entered the muscles of Kamke's abdomen, Edmund Gill, the man charged with the shooting, is in the Lincoln county jail at Merrill. In regard to Gill's arrest, the Merrill News of Friday said:

Gill was arrested by the constable, and John O'Brien was brought to this City Tuesday afternoon. He was brought into court and a logical charge was brought against him. He was charged with intent to murder, after which he was taken to the county jail.

The preliminary hearing is set for Monday but it is believed the time will be extended as the prosecuting officers are desirous of having Aug. Kamke present at the hearing.

The saloon where the shooting occurred, has been the scene of much trouble in the town of Harrison. It was two years ago that a person was shot there, and the lawbreaker given a term in the state penitentiary. Other improper acts have been done, causing the county a large sum of money.

SUPREME COURT DECISION.

According to an opinion handed down by the Wisconsin supreme court today, common councils of the cities of the state are required to revoke licenses of saloon keepers who have violated ordinances regulating their business. The opinion was in the case of the Rev. P. T. Galpin and W. McKay against the common council of Madison. A saloon keeper named Henry Nebuhr, running the Mehara hotel in the Sixth ward of Madison, was arrested several months ago for keeping his saloon open after 12 o'clock midnight in violation of a City ordinance requiring saloons to be closed between midnight and 5 o'clock in the morning. Nebuhr pleaded guilty in court and paid a fine. Then Galpin and McKay requested the common council to revoke Nebuhr's license. It refused to do so. Then Galpin and McKay asked the circuit court for an order to compel the council to revoke the license, and after a long legal fight the order was granted. The common council appealed and the supreme court today affirmed the judgment.

GIANT SLEIGH BUILDING SOLD.

The old Giant Sleigh property on Thayer and Rives Streets was purchased Friday, from E. W. Anderson by the Palst Brewing Company of Milwaukee, and John Gibson of this City. Consideration $5000. That purchased by the Palst people is the main building now occupied on the first floor by Matt Kristenson. Mr. Gibson bought the building on the back lot, at one time occupied as a blacksmith shop by Ed. Rogers. What the intentions of the Palst Company are we are unable to state although it is said that the building will not be torn down, at least not for some time to come.

TO DO MUCH BUILDING.

As far as building operations are concerned, the coming summer is to be a busy one in Rhinelander. At least this is what the carpenters say; and certainly they are in a position to know. It is learned that many handsome and substantial residences are to be erected in various parts of the City, the contracts for quite a number of these having already been let. The excavations and foundations for several new houses were completed last fall and the owners are patiently awaiting the advent of spring when the weather will allow them to commence building. Rhinelander, like all good towns, is growing rapidly and the vast number of new residents who locate here each year causes an increase in the demand for dwellings.

NEW RAILROAD.

Waupaca & Green Bay Railroad Recently Incorporated.

A new railroad, incorporated last Wednesday as the Waupaca & Green Bay Railroad Co., will extend from Scandinavia to Waupaca. The route will take in the Waupaca Granite Quarry, a few miles north of Waupaca. The quarry has recently been purchased by Messrs. Aggerboeck & Johnson of Chicago, who are the real promoters of the road, as it is absolutely necessary to have railroad connection at the quarry. Waupaca stock holders will have shares enough to control the road, Green Bay and the quarry owners agreeing to take the remainder. This new road will be a great convenience to many Rhinelander citizens who, heretofore have been obliged to go down to Neenah and then travel half way back on the Central before reaching their destination, or else spend all day at some junction. It will also keep the Wisconsin Central Railroad from the continued monopoly it has enjoyed so many years and thought was a certainty forever. Waupaca, no doubt will be greatly benefited in many ways by this move as the quarry will employ 400 or 500 men. As it is only a short distance away, the City will be headquarters for the employees. Grading will begin as early as possible in the spring and the road will begin business before fall.

LODGE GROWS RAPIDLY.

At the regular meeting of the S. H. and E. F. of A. lodge, Tuesday evening the members had for their guest of honor S. M. Anderson of Breckinridge, Minn., who is the president of the order. President Anderson has been making a tour of the various cities in the Northwest where there are S. H. and E. F. of A. lodges, and finds the order in a flourishing condition both financially and in point of membership. While the order is still in its infancy it is estimated that it has nearly 6000 members. Its gain during the last few years has been little short of wonderful.

The Rhinelander lodge now numbers 172 members and is one of the largest and most prominent lodges of the order. In six months this lodge increased its membership by 62 eclipsing all other lodges for rapid growth in such a brief period.

President Anderson expressed himself as more than satisfied and even surprised with the healthy condition of the order here and complimented the members on the keen interest which they have taken in everything pertaining to the up building of the order and its future welfare.

YOUNG LIFE ENDED.

Ella Johnson, aged seventeen, daughter of Mrs. Hans Anderson died Monday morning at the Anderson home at 416 Thayer Street.

The young lady had suffered from tuberculosis for several years and it was that disease which resulted in her death. Last Spring she returned from Yakima, Wash., where she had spent the previous winter in hopes that the invigorating climate of that section might offer her relief. The disease, however, had reached such an advanced stage that it could not be conquered. After her return to this City she declined rapidly and it was thought that she could not survive the last autumn. Blessed with a sweet and loving nature, Ella bore her sufferings patiently and during her entire illness was seldom heard to complain. She won many friends and at school was a favorite with both teachers and scholars. The funeral was conducted yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Anderson home, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Wm. Kundson, of the Norwegian Lutheran Church. There were many beautiful floral offerings. Interment took place in the family lot at Forest Home cemetery. Ella was the third daughter of the family to die with tuberculosis. One sister's death occurred about five years ago and the other's three years ago. In this their late sorrow, the bereaved mother and family have the sympathy of all.

THE SKI TOURNAMENT.

Everybody is talking about the big National Ski Tournament to be held in Ashland February 7th, and 8th, and by the interest taken in the event it is likely that a large number of Rhinelander people will be in attendance. In a letter to the New North: Aksel Holter, Secretary of the Tournament says: "The National Hill at Ashland where the contest for the ski championship of America will take place is very steep. The skiers of the Ashland Club who tried the hill last Sunday made leaps of 90, 100, and 103 feet. After the speed of the hill has been established it will be closed for all practice until the tournament takes place. With favorable weather conditions, a new American record will be established without any doubt. Besides being very swift the hill is perfect in every detail, resembling very much the hill in Norway where the National contests are held every year."

POLICE FORCE CRIPPLED.

Two of the members of the Rhinelander police force are on the sick list. Officer Mike Sullivan has been confined to his home for the last two weeks but is said to be gaining slowly and will again be on his beat by the latter part of next week. Officer James O'Malley was taken ill, Monday and has since been off duty. His condition is not serious. The illness of these officers has crippled the force considerably. Chief Straub has secured Joe O'Malley to serve as special police until the regular men are again on duty.

NIGHT SCHOOL OF STENOGRAPHY.

Why not join the night school of shorthand and typewriting and become a competent stenographer. The work will be taken up thoroughly, and only the most approved methods will be used. The Munson system of shorthand, and touch typewriting will be taught. For speed, accuracy, consistency, system and legibility, the Munson plan of shorthand writing is without a rival. Touch typewriting is equally important. Experience has demonstrated that it is not only practical but that it is superior to all other methods in speed, accuracy, and evenness of touch.

Young man—Young woman—if you are not satisfied with your present position or the returns it is bringing you, why not take up a night course in stenography and be prepared to fill one of the many positions that are opening up every day. For particulars, terms, etc., apply to

REPAIRING NEATLY DONE

DAVENPORT STREET

A Matrimonial Mishap

BY R. NORMAN SILVER

Author of "Wonders of the Deep."

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Dear sir: Having seen and liked a copy of your paper, The Golden Circle, I venture to trespass a little upon your attention. I am young, only 23—"

Thaddeus Field smiled when he came to the statement just quoted. He had never in the whole course of his experience as a matrimonial agent met a would-be bride who owned to more than 20 summers. Hardly had the smile dawned upon his lips than it vanished; the letter had become interesting.

"—And have inherited some money from an aunt, with whom I had lived since childhood, and who has just died. Thanks to her, I have been fairly well-educated, and I believe I am naturally neither stupid nor awkward. Yet I am now altogether alone, and am very, very unhappy. If you could see me, you would know why; I am just the ugliest woman in the world. Yet I think if some one could know me as I am, he would love me. Can you help me? I enclose $25. I am sure it would never be worth your while to attend to my case at your ordinary rates. I am so very, very ugly. Believe me to be, yours very truly, Stella Garner."

A few days after Thaddeus Field's receipt of "Stella Garner's" letter he received an important visit. The tall footman opened the double doors, and bowed in a handsome man of middle age—a man with blue eyes, crisp, iron-gray hair and beard, and dazzling white teeth. Thaddeus Field was impressed, and rose gracefully as Pierre, the footman, retired.

The newcomer held out his hand. "Mr. Thaddeus Field?" he said. "I am Mr. Thaddeus Field," answered that gentleman, assuming his official dignity.

His visitor bowed. "I am Stephen Osborne," he explained. "Stephen Montgomery Osborne, at your service."

"Pray be seated," said Thaddeus, offering a chair.

Mr. Osborne sat down, and crossed his legs.

"In what way," demanded Thaddeus, "can I have the pleasure of serving you?"

Stephen Osborne laughed out heartily.

"I want a wife," he answered.

"What kind of a wife do you want, Mr. Osborne?" Thaddeus asked.

Stephen Osborne seemed embarrassed.

"To be quite honest, Mr.—Mr. Field," he replied, "it isn't so much the kind of a wife I want, as the kind of wife I've got to have."

"Indeed!" said Thaddeus, puzzled.

"Yes," said his client, irritably; "I haven't a great deal of time. You see, when I was a bit younger I was fool enough to tell my papa, who had married again—I was the only child of the first marriage—that I would never marry if I couldn't get some one a little better looking than my new step-mother. So we quarreled and parted, and when the old boy died last winter—there were no more children, and step-mother died some years ago—he left me his money on condition that I married a girl uglier than step-mother, and gave me 12 months to make up my mind. I didn't expect ever to need the money, and so took it easy, but some of my speculations have done decently bad, and I must have some cash before long or go bust. That's why I'm here."

"Thaddeus Field's eyes shone—it was just the kind of case he liked."

"If you will call to-morrow about this time, Mr. Osborne," he said, "I think I shall have something to say. Good-day."

With this comforting assurance he rang the bell, and Mr. Osborne departed.

That afternoon Mrs. Christina Field left for Boston. Her instructions were not to return without Miss "Stella Garner."

On the succeeding morning Christina, accompanied by a closely-veiled lady, entered the anteroom. Christina left her charge and went into her husband's sanctum. Thaddeus was standing on the hearth-rug, chewing his mustaches with impatience.

"Will she do?" he asked.

Christina grinned.

"As ugly as sin," she said; "but smart."

"That's all right," concluded Thaddeus; "bring her in."

Christina opened the door and called. The veiled lady rose and entered.

"Miss Garner, I understand," said Thaddeus, rapidly; "please to meet you. Miss Garner, I want you to see a gentleman; if you can like him, I think he can like you. If you take a fancy to him I shall be happy to ask you to meet him at my house some evening soon. I can't stop to explain. You must just step in there with my wife, and leave yourself in her hands. You'll be able to see all right; our man's almost due."

No sooner had the two ladies been safely disposed of than Mr. Osborne was shown in, and was soon in deep converse with Thaddeus.

Thanks to the tact of Mr. Thaddeus Field, Mr. Osborne laughed and chattered and looked so merry and handsome that the lady behind the carved screen lost her heart to him, and when Mr. Field escorted Mr. Osborne out, and the door closing behind them, the ladies were at liberty to come forth again. Miss Stella Garner laughed herself, and chattered, and looked not so ugly after all. And Mr. Stephen Osborne, who with Thaddeus had gone round another way into the hidden cupboard, that the former might spy upon Miss Garner as she had spied upon him, drew a deep breath, and whispered to the matrimonial agent, "I suppose I can't do better—she seems a decent sort."

"Quite the lady, I assure you, Mr. Osborne," murmured the wily Thaddeus in his ear; "any amount of accomplishments—young, and a little bit of money in the bank. Will you come up to my house to-night? I'll ask her round too."

"No, thanks," said Stephen Osborne. "Let it be to-morrow. I've something else on to-night."

"To-morrow, then," replied Thaddeus, "you will make the acquaintance of the future Mrs. Osborne."

Now, there was one thing in the world for which Christina Field lived and moved and had her being, and that was jewelry. In her bedroom at the little uptown house she had a small strong safe built into the wall, and the key of that safe never left her possession. Her diamonds were not imperial, still they were valuable, and had been mounted to her own instructions, and she had a ruby bracelet for which many a fairly honest woman would have risked her soul. When an opportunity arose for Madame Christina to don her glittering treasures she was happy; when there were women present to envy them she became positively radiant.

In obedience to this ruling passion, Christina—dressing for the early dinner at which Stephen Osborne was to meet Miss Stella Garner, and which was to be followed by a visit to the theater—clasped about her white throat and dainty arms some five thousand dollars' worth of precious stones. Very well she looked, too, did Christina, when she took her place at the head of the table and beamed on the ugly Miss Garner, the admiring Stephen Osborne, and the complacent Thaddeus.

It was a wonderfully merry little party; each seemed to vie with each in brilliancy. If Christina was gay, Wrinkles come from hard work, is the assertion of a famous beauty specialist. The mind and the body both work. And they come from aching feet. Tired feet will make wrinkles very fast. Don't let your feet get tired unless you want to have wrinkles in your face.

"I went to a beautiful English woman last year—one whom I had known a long time and to whose club I belonged—and I said: 'Please tell me how you manage to keep so free from wrinkles.'"

"By walking and keeping out in the open air," she said, "and by not worrying."

"But suppose your shoes pinch and your feet hurt and your ankles are not comfortable and you are miserable after you have walked a mile," I ventured.

"You must wear big shoes," said she, leaning toward me. And then she whispered something in my ear. It was this: "Wear No. 6's when you go out for a constitutional. You can't get your shoes too big. When you come in the house take off your big shoes and put on your little ones. But when you are out for your health wear shoes so big that you have to tie them on to keep them from slipping off. My shoes almost turn around upon my feet. And I walk like a queen."

"It was a fine lesson in wrinkles to me, for women get wrinkles from the tired feet as well as from a tired mind."

"It was a fine lesson in wrinkles to me, for women get wrinkles from the tired feet as well as from a tired mind."

"By walking and keeping out in the open air," she said, "and by not worrying."

"But suppose your shoes pinch and your feet hurt and your ankles are not comfortable and you are miserable after you have walked a mile," I ventured.

"You must wear big shoes," said she, leaning toward me. And then she whispered something in my ear. It was this: "Wear No. 6's when you go out for a constitutional. You can't get your shoes too big. GATHERED SMILES

LIKED HIS STYLE.

"Mr. Spudlong," began the youth, hanging his hat on the back of the chair, "I will occupy only a few moments of your time. I have come to ask you for your daughter."

"Young man," said the elderly banker, "do you—"

"Yes, sir; I realize fully that she has been tenderly nurtured, and that she is very dear to you; also that her home is one in which she has been surrounded by every luxury. But she is willing to leave it."

"Can you—"

"No, sir; I can't quite maintain her in the style to which she has been accustomed, but I have a good salary, and I am ready to chance it. So is she."

"Will you—"

"Yes, sir; I will keep my life insured for a sum sufficient to provide for her if I should be taken away."

"Would you—"

"No, sir; I would not expect to live with the family. I am able to buy and furnish a modest home for her."

"Young man," said Mr. Spudlong, looking at his watch, "I rather like your style. You can have her. Good—"

"Morning, sir."

WHAT BROKE UP THE SHOW.

Ethel—I hear that Jack kissed Miss Coldcash in the dark last night.

Maud—Well, if you ever saw her in the light you would understand it. —Chicago Journal.

Too Rich to Spell.

"I wish," said Mrs. Parvenu to her daughter's teacher, "that you would drop spelling from the list of Janet's studies."

"Drop spelling!" exclaimed the teacher. "Why?"

"It is so common," replied Mrs. Parvenu. "Everybody learns to spell."

"But your daughter will need the knowledge," protested the teacher. "She'll need it for her correspondence, and—"

"Enough!" interrupted Mrs. Parvenu haughtily. "Evidently you cannot rise above the common level. My daughter will move in the highest circles of society, and will be rich enough to have a private secretary to write anything that she does not wish to have printed. I do not wish to have her time wasted." —Royal Magazine.

Watering the Fish.

Proprietor—Where is the premiere danseuse?

Stage Manager—She sent word that she has a cold in her head and can't dance.

Proprietor—And where is the prima donna?

Stage Manager—O, she got cold feet. —Philadelphia Press.

Bruised with Ideas.

"Your husband is not looking well to-night, Mrs. Rhymer."

"He isn't, and I'm not at all surprised at it."

"No? Has he been overworking himself lately?"

"It isn't that so much; it's his originality. Why, that man is struck with so many original ideas that his mind must be one mass of bruises." —Royal Magazine.

A Serious Matter.

Young Wife—What? Do you mean to say your brother and his wife have given up housekeeping and gone to boarding?

Husband—Yes; but what difference does that make?

Young Wife—Oh, nothing; only in about a week or so they'll be dropping in every day to meals. —N. Y. Weekly.

TO BE EXPECTED.

Muriel—Some men think more of their typewriters than of their wives.

George—Of course, they can dictate to their typists.

A Slam.

Puff—Who do you think was after me when you saw me running down the street yesterday?

Miss Cayenne—Can't imagine. Didn't know that anybody ever wanted you badly enough to run after you. —Detroit Free Press.

The Modern Definition.

"Pa, what's a genius?"

"Nowadays," replied father, "it's a man who succeeds on a large scale."

CORNERED.

Householder—Here, drop that coat and get out.

Burglar—You be quiet, or I'll wake your wife and give her this letter that you forgot to post. —Royal Magazine.

Frocks for Children.

Piques, lincs, dimities and muslins all find favor for the little frocks. The long-waisted frocks are still considered the most fashionable, although the effect of the Empire styles is noticeable in the more elaborate little frocks for afternoon wear made of the finest lawn or cambric. A hand of embroidery across the top of the waist, with a ruffle of embroidery, is all the trimming required. If it is desired there can be also a ruffle of the embroidery around the hem. —Harper's Bazar.

Made from Scraps of Silk.

Attractive opera or slipper bags may often be evolved from odd pieces of silk. In the first case these may be embroidered, hand-painted or beaded and put on bright clasps, or in both cases they may be put on drawing strings of velvet or satin ribbon.

Very Thin Critter.

Blinks was hurrying across the station yard wrapped in thought and a heavy overcoat when his contemplative mood was brought to a sudden termination by a cab almost running over him. Cabbie pulled his horse up with a jerk and gave his opinion in plain English about absent-minded people.

"Couldn't you see the bloomin' 'ows?" he asked, with a withering glance.

"See it?" gasped Blinks, looking contemptuously at the specimen between the shafts. Then he stepped on to the curb. "I didn't see your horse when I stood in front of him," said Blinks, "but I can see something when I look at him sideways." —Tit-Bits.

Very Likely.

"You seemed to size that man up pretty well," remarked the talkative patron.

"Sure," replied the waiter, "it's easy for us waiters to take a man's measure."

"Yes? I suppose you measure him from tip to tip?"

"Quite the lady, I assure you, Mr. Osborne," murmured the wily Thaddeus in his ear; "any amount of accomplishments—young, and a little bit of money in the bank. Will you come up to my house to-night? I'll ask her round too."

Sporting Gossip.

We have heard of the spit ball and the rubber-filled ball of baseball, but the latest sensation in football is the rebounding ball. A dozen years ago the spiral punt was introduced, and was the aim of great kickers to master this trick of the gridiron. Lately a certain young giant of the St. Louis university team has acquired the art of throwing a spiral the distance of an average punt—45 yards—but it remained for Boeck, Georgetown's quarter back, to discover the rebounding ball. The trick was discovered in this way: The varsity had been hammering the scrubs' line with cross bucks and straight formations with considerable success. Capt. Boeck gave the signal for a quarter back kick, and the end slipped out behind the scrubs' line. The ball was kicked, but the scrubs' quarter back was on the varsity end like a flash. What was their surprise when the ball rebounded from their very grasp several yards into the arms of the varsity full back, who tore down the field for a touchdown while the others were looking for the ball. A few minutes later Boeck tried another kick, the ball rebounding even farther than at the attempt before. By this time Coach Reilly and Boeck himself began to take notice. The blue and gray captain recalled that he had booted the ball in a peculiar manner

FARMER WILLIAMS' LESSON

In Time of Adversity He Got to Understand Who Were His Real Friends—Prosperity in Standing Together.

(Copyright, 1906, by Alfred C. Clark.)
"What y' got there, Sis?" inquired Farmer Williams, as he kicked off his felt boots and set them carefully behind the stove to dry. "That's what I thought it looked like, one of them Chicago catylogs, though I hain't seen one elost for quite a few years back. Me an' your ma ust to buy mighty nigh overthine we used out of them catylogs when we first come to Kansas. Land sakes, I have to laugh now sometimes when I think of the way we would get kitched out in awhile. They's some cheap things in them catylogs, an' then agin they's a lot 't ain't so cheap. Y' never kin tell till they come, an' then it's too late to send 'em back. But as I was a sayin', we hain't bought nothin' out of a catylog for a right smart o' years now, an' the way it come about I had as well tell y', cause I don't think y' really remember much about it."

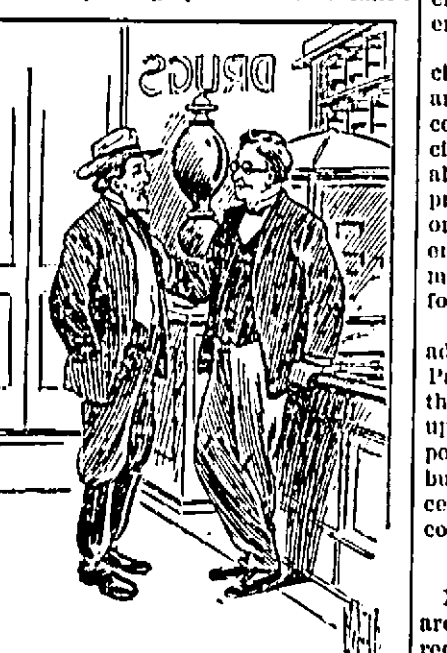

"When we come to Kansas long in the first of the '80's we got along right well. We was able to pay cash for what we got, and we got the money for everything we said. We was payin' out on the place right along; crops was purty good an' we was a feelin' like the Lord was a smilin' on our efforts, and the happy home we dreamed about when we first got married was in sight."

But they come a change in Kansas long in the last half of the '80's. Times got hard and kep a gittin' tighter. Four straight years it was so dry y' had to soak the hogs afore they'd hold swill—though I will say they was some orthry reason on account of the swill bein' so thin—wheat just died in the ground for want of rain, and the hot winds bled the over-latin' sap out of the corn. They wasn't no pasture, no nothin'. You can know we was a feelin' purty blue about that time, but we was young and strong, and thought with the chickens an' hogs we could git through anyhow."

"Then one day you got to complainin' an' lookin' so thin it worried us. Your ma is a middlin' good doctor, take it all around, but nothin' she could think of, done you any good. Well, you kep a gittin' pindler and pindler, till you got so sot y' wouldn't do nothin' but set in a chair by the kitchen stove, wrapped in your ma's old shawl, an' you looked so pitiful that we made up our minds to have the doctor, even if it took th' last chicken on the place. Well, he come, and after he'd looked at you awhile an' felt your pulse, he shot his watch up with a snap, an' says, quiet like: 'Better fix up a warm place for her in the front room, don't have too much light nor any drafts to strike her. Then we knowed it wain't no small sickness we had to fight, an' when we got you fixed up in bed I follered Doc, out on the porch an' I says: 'Well, Doc, sez I, 'what's the matter with our little girl?'"

"I don't want to skeer yo, Mr. Williams," says he, "but I'm afraid she's in for a sleg of typhoid fever."
"Well, after he was gone I went out in the kitchen an' told your ma, but she says, brave as kin be: 'Well, Ezra, if the Lord has seen fit to put that much more on our load we must bear up an' fight it out dola' our duty the best we kin, leavin' the rest to him.' An' I thought so too. So we jest kep our hearts brave an' done what seemed right 't do."

"The hardest thing was to figure out where 't git the medicine, an' fruit, an' dainty things your sickness called for."

"Why Cert'nice, Mr. Williams, Jest Let Us Know What You Want."

for. We hadn't been tradin' much with the stores in Huston, buyin' mostly from the catylog folks y' know, an' so we didn't have any credit there to speak of. But I went 't Foster, th' druggist, an' I told him how things was. I didn't have no money 't pay for th' medicine an' things, an' the prospects for the next year was as poor or poorer than th' last."

"Why Cert'nice, Mr. Williams," he says, "jest let us know what you want an' we'll carry you along till times come better for you. We're all in a tight pinch now, but if we hang 'together things is all goin' to come out right in the end. I have faith in th' country, an' in the people that live here, an' nobody's sick baby is a goin' to suffer if I kin help any."

"Well, it was the same thing at Harlow's grocery, an' th' coal yard, everywhere in th' town. Cert'nice, Mr. Williams, we'll see y' through on this." It made me feel mean an' small some way, though I don't know why. An' often when they'd put in a few oranges or somethin' like that, sayin' in a "pologizin'" sort of way, "little somethin' for th' sick baby, Williams," why somehow it made a hard lump come up in my throat, an' I had a queer feelin' in my eyes, kinder achy like, "I know."

"Well, to be short about it, for eight weeks you kep a gittin' weaker an' weaker, an' we kep a feelin' more an' more hopeless. It was a sad Christmas in our home that year. Your ma was jest wore out with watchin' an' tryin' to do her work between times, an' I was so high sick with trouble an' discouragement 't I ust to go around by the barn an' jest cry like a baby. But I never lost to your ma though, nor she 't me. We tried 't encourage each other though we knowed in our hearts 't all our cheerful words was lies, an' each one knowed the other knowed it too."

"Well, jest th' night before New Years Doc called us outside your room. Oh, how my heart sunk then! 'I don't want to hold off any false hopes to you people,' he says, 'but I think with proper care from now on, your little girl is goin' 't git well.'"

Elsie, it seemed jest like a ton of hay had been lifted off my chest right there. As for your ma, why she jest busted down an' cried as hard as she could. After Doc was gone we went out to the kitchen an' kneeled down right there an' thanked God for the most glorious New Year's gift he ever giv' 't anybody in th' world—the health of our baby girl. You know your pa ain't no ranter or shoutin' yer ma bein' a Baptist has furnished most of th' r'ligion for our house, but jest then I seen how it was that they comes times in people's lives when they've jest got to have somethin' bigger an' greater than anythin' human 't turn to with a great joy or a great sorrow."

"Well, it was a long time yet before you was strong enough 't play out doors, an' it was a hard winter. I burned every post of the fence around the south eighty for firewood afore it was over. But it seemed like we had so much 't be thankful for that we was strong 't care for any of th' smaller troubles that we come across."

"It really hain't no bad to look back at it now after th' trouble is over, but then hard years in Kansas drove nearly all our neighbors 't give up their land an' move away, broke in hopes an' pocketbook. Them of us as stayed is purty well fixed now, but we fit for everything we got, an' fit hard, too. An', O, yes, about th' catylogs. Well after you was well an' things begun 't take a turn for th' better, one night ma brought out that Chicago book an' laid it on the kitchen table an' says: 'Ezra, what do you want 't do with this?' An' I sez: 'Les burn it.' An' your ma sez: 'Jest what I was thinkin', too.' An' so we did burn it, an' what's more, we ain't never had one in th' house since, an' we never send away for anythin' we can git at any of the stores in Huston, 'cause we want to deal with them as has an interest in the country we live in, an' in us people that live close by."

"Why, you needn't of put yours in th' stove, too, Elsie, I didn't mean—yes, I don't know but what it's jest as well y' done it after all."

Folk Denounces Mail-Order Idea.
Addressing a meeting of retail merchants in Jefferson city recently, Governor Folk, of Missouri, said:
"We are proud of our splendid cities, and we want to increase wealth and population, and we also want our country towns to grow. We wish the city merchants to build up, but we also desire the country merchants to prosper. I do not believe in the mail-order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and to make his money in, his good enough for him to spend his money in."
"No merchant can succeed without advertising in one way or another. Patronize your town papers, build them up, and they will build the town up in increased trade and greater opportunities. Do not be afraid that business is going to be hurt by the recent exposures of wrong-doing in the commercial world."

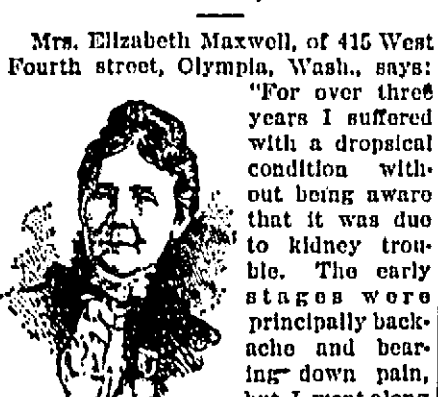

Medicines in Pneumonia.
Dudley Morgan declares that there are some cases of pneumonia which require only intelligent and systematic guidance and nursing. Others need little medicine, but when it is indicated it should be given promptly and energetically. Even in the most trying cases there is little else needed than digitalis, strychnine, and ice. In nearly all cases of pneumonia it is a good plan to start with quiet rest, unloading of the bowels when necessary, a variety of nourishing liquid food, and an ice bag on the chest in the region of the pain and congestion, and also over the precordia if necessary. Trying cases are those in which the patient is a steady or hard drinker. In pneumonia digitalis should be used to strengthen and nourish the heart and to reduce a rapid pulse.—Medical Record.

Keep Your Money at Home.
Don't send money to mail order houses to deposit. Your home bank is the only safe place to keep it and will pay you as good interest as can be had, and then you run no risk as in such cases as the "Cash Buyer's Union" failure. The home bank will grant you favors and mail order houses never do.

Mixture of Many Nations.
Louis N. Parker, the dramatist, was born in France; his father was an American, his mother an English woman; his first language was Italian and he was educated in Germany.

BLOATED WITH DROPSY.

The Heart Was Badly Affected When the Patient Began Using Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, of 415 West Fourth street, Olympia, Wash., says: "For over three years I suffered with a dropsical condition without being aware that it was due to kidney trouble. The early stages were principally backache and bearing down pain, but I went along without worrying much until dropsy set in. My feet and ankles swelled up, my hands puffed and became so tense I could hardly close them. I had great difficulty in breathing, and my heart would flutter with the least exertion. I could not walk far without stopping again and again to rest. Since using four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills the bloating has gone down and the feelings of distress have disappeared."

New York Philanthropist.
Dr. Adelade Wallerstein, rich, young and handsome, has turned part of her elegant New York home into a physician's office. Here she devotes about six hours a day to practicing medicine, all the income so derived going to her charity work on the east side of the city. Mrs. Wallerstein is accomplished and socially prominent, but has given up most of her society pleasures for her professional and charitable work.

Owes Double Allegiance.
Count Prosper D'Epinay, who has been decorated in Paris by the British ambassador with the Victoria Order, is in the odd position of being a British subject and yet a Frenchman at the same time. He was born in the island of Mauritius some 65 years ago. The island, of course, is inhabited by a French-speaking population and once formed part of the territories of France. Both the count's parents being French, the count is regarded in France as a Frenchman, but being born under the British flag he is just as surely a British subject.

Would Punish Burglars Severely.
Assemblyman Ellet J. W. Ruhland, of Pittsburgh says one of the first bills he will introduce will be one to increase the penalty for burglary, for attempts at housebreaking and highway robbery. He wants to make the maximum sentence 30 years and the minimum 15 years. "This is little enough," says Mr. Ruhland, "for the man who enters your home at the dead of night and presents a revolver to your face or the face of your wife. I think if such a law were in vogue in this state the number of burglaries in this city would be much smaller."

MANY SOURCES OF SALT.

That from Natural Springs is Generally Most Nearly Pure.

The purity of salt depends upon the source from which it is obtained and the sanitary conditions under which it is prepared for the market. The supply of common salt, the most indispensable of all the seasoning substances both as a relishing condiment and a well-known universal food preservative, is exhaustless, yet even so there is salt and salt, says the Pictorial Review.

Formerly salt was obtained by evaporating ocean water, a process that left many impurities in the residuum, to say nothing of its exposure to all kinds of dirt in its shipment from seaports. The Turk's Island or rock salt, which is still largely used in pork packing and in the manufacture of ice creams, comes to the United States in holds of vessels continually subjected to dirt and foul odors. Upon its arrival it is again handled, then packed in coarse burlap bags, permitting dust to sift into the salt. In this condition it reaches the consumer.

Latterly, however, the product of salt springs has largely taken the lead in this country not only for table salt but for meat packing. The annual production from this source in the United States reaches more than 40,000,000 bushels, the state of New York in the vicinity of Syracuse furnishing a large proportion of this important supply.

NEVER TIRES

Of the Food That Restored Her to Health.

"My food was killing me and I didn't know the cause," writes a Colo. young lady. "For two years I was thin and sickly, suffering from indigestion and inflammatory rheumatism."

"I had tried different kinds of diet, plain living, and many of the remedies recommended, but got no better. Finally, about five weeks ago, mother suggested that I try Grape-Nuts, and I began at once, eating it with a little cream or milk. A change for the better began at once."

"To-day I am well and am gaining weight and strength all the time. I've gained 10 lbs. in the last five weeks and do not suffer any more from indigestion and the rheumatism is all gone."

"I know it is to Grape-Nuts alone that I owe my restored health. I still eat the food twice a day and never tire of it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The flavor of Grape-Nuts is peculiar to itself. It is neutral, not too sweet and has an agreeable, healthful quality that never grows tiresome.

One of the sources of rheumatism is from overloading the system with acid material, the result of imperfect digestion and assimilation.

As soon as improper food is abandoned and Grape-Nuts is taken regularly, digestion is made strong, the organs do their work of building up good red blood cells and of carrying away the excess of disease-making material from the system.

The result is a certain and steady return to normal health and mental activity. "There's a reason." Read the little book "The Road to Well-villo" in plgs.

Still Working for Humanity.
Tennie Claffin, as she was called before she married an English lord and went to England to live in the '70s, is back again in New York. Her agitation now is to promote happier marriages by lectures and informal entertainments in churches.

Footballer Showed Courage.
H. J. Henebery, Ireland's Rugby full back, played the other day for 70 minutes against the South Africans while suffering from a split ear, damaged skull, broken middle finger, on left hand, strained chest, muscles and torn finger cartilages. He received the injuries in a tackle ten minutes after the game began.

Much Traveled Sailor.
Henry Stevens, chief steward of a Cunard liner is now on his thirteenth trip across the Atlantic. This record, so far as is known, has never been surpassed by any other employee of the steamship lines. Stevens is 63 years old and has been in continuous service of the Cunard company for 42 years and six months. Taking 3,000 miles for the trip from Liverpool to New York as a basis for computation, Stevens has traveled 3,000,000 miles, or a distance of 12,000 times around the earth. Had he been traveling through space he would have made six round trips to the moon.

Long Lived Parisians.
M. Rousse, the oldest member of the Institute of France, who will be 90 years old next May, is prepared to prove by statistics that Paris is the city in which life is prolonged more surely than in any other in the world. There are enough octogenarians in the French capital to form a good-sized town of their own—namely, 10,609. As the population of Paris was in 1901 a little over 2,700,000 this gives 389 octogenarians to every 100,000 inhabitants. It also appears from the figures of the veteran statistician that Paris has 620 nonagenarians, 99 of whom are in their one hundredth year.

French President's Double.
M. Fallieres was until recently believed to be the only president of the French republic who had no double, but his counterpart has been found. The man who most resembles him physically is a respectable merchant of the Rue Saint Honore, who plays his part with decorum and dignity. He wears exactly the same kind of blue butterfly necktie with white dots as the president, the same kind of hat and exactly so oddly cut a beard. And on his promenade he is always accompanied by a friend who could easily be taken for the president's private secretary. Dignified and with measured steps the enviable double walks through the Faubourg Saint Honore and feels overjoyed at being saluted on all sides.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.
No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as Alcock's Plasters. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin.

Alcock's Plasters are the original and genuine porous plasters and all most meritorious articles have been extensively imitated, therefore always make sure and get the genuine.

ANIMALS THAT SHED TEARS.

Travelers' Observations Have Proved That Weeping is Common.

Travelers through the Syrian desert have soon horses weep from thirst, a mule has been seen to cry from the pain of an injured foot and camels, it is said, shed tears in streams, says a writer in Harper's Weekly. A cow sold by its mistress who had tended young soko ape used to cry from vexation if Livingston didn't nurse it in his arms when it asked him to. Wounded apes have been crying and apes have wept over their young slain by hunters. A chimpanzee trained to carry water jugs broke one and, fell a-crying, which proved sorrow, though it wouldn't mend the jug. Rats, discovering their young drowned, have been moved to tears. A giraffe, which a huntsman's rifle had injured began to cry when approached. Sea lions often weep over the loss of their young. Gordon Cummings observed tears trickling down the face of a dying elephant. And even an orang-outang when deprived of its mango was so vexed that it took to weeping. There is little doubt, therefore, that animals do cry from grief or weep from pain or annoyance.

OLD CAPT. CACK'S QUESTION.

Somewhat Pointed, But It Denoted Quick Intelligence.

Pierce Jay, the commissioner of banks of Massachusetts, at the American Bankers' association's convention in St. Louis, advocated a better accounting system.

"But above all," said Mr. Jay, in a discussion of his idea, "we want intelligence, if embezzlement is to be thoroughly put down. Systems are good, but intelligence is better, and in cashiers and tellers and bookkeepers and note clerks we want the same keen, quick intelligence that characterized old Capt. Hiram Cack, of Gloucester."

"Cack lay very ill. One day he got down-hearted, feeling that his case was hopeless."

"I fear, doctor," he said, "there isn't much hope for me."

"Oh, yes, there is," the doctor answered. "Three years ago I was in your condition precisely, and look at me now."

"Cack, intelligent and alert, said quickly:

"What doctor did you have?"

ALMOST A SOLID SORE.

Skin Disease from Birth—Fortune Spent on Her Without Benefit—Cured Her with Cuticura.

"I have a cousin in Rockingham Co. who once had a skin disease from her birth until she was six years of age. Her father had spent a fortune on her to get her cured and none of the treatments did her any good. Old Dr. C. suggested that he try the Cuticura Remedies, which he did. When he commenced to use it the child was almost a solid scab. He had used it about two months and the child was well. I was there when they commenced to use your Cuticura Remedies. I stayed that week and then returned home and stayed two weeks and then went back and stayed with them two weeks longer, and when I went home I could hardly believe she was the same child. Her skin was as soft as a baby's without a scar on it. I have not seen her in seventeen years, but I have heard from her and the last time I heard from her she was well. Mrs. W. P. Inglo, Burlington, N. C., June 16, 1905."

Made Much on Small Capital.

Twenty-five years ago W. S. Wicham left the town of La Grange, Ga., with the munificent sum of one dollar in his pocket and landed in New York with nothing to his credit but his clothes and his character. The quality of the former does not matter and the quality of the latter has shown itself. He is to-day president of 75 banks, all but four of which are situated in his native state. In return for Georgia's small advance of 100 cents he has pretty well cornered her banking interests and has in keeping a goodly amount of her funds. The four banks of which he is president outside of the state of Georgia are situated in Florida.

Surely Had Helped.

While the child labor bill was under discussion in the senate Mr. Piles said he did not approve of some provisions in the measure, adding: "Under the bill as it now stands I would not be permitted to employ my own son in my law office if he were under 14 years of age." "Would you," Senator Beveridge interrupted quickly, "put a son under 14 years of age at work in your office if you desired to train him to be a lawyer?" "I went into my father's office," said Senator Piles with dignity, "at the age of 13." "Did it help?" queried the Indiana senator. "Yes, I am here." Then the sedate senator chuckled.

What is Pe-ru-na?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy. Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRATIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSORIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna, confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

EKERN NAMED FOR SPEAKER OF ASSEMBLY.
In spite of the fact that Connor, Davidson and Isaac Stevenson worked for the election of Assemblyman, LeRoy, of Marinette, for speaker, Mr. Herman Ekern, of Whitehall, defeated him by four votes. After Ekern's election, Uncle Isaac remarked that he guessed that LaFollette was not politically dead in Wisconsin yet.

Of course, in the eyes of the Connor supporters there was no factional contest. Connor is sharp in making them think so; he had all to lose in making them think otherwise.

Mr. Stout who has been an active worker in the Senate for years is President Pro Tem of the Senate.

While there was a little fight on speaker there is every indication that no ill feelings were left in the skirmish, that men well prepared by past work are at the head of the leading chairmanships and all republicans are determined to continue the good work that has been well begun.

Governor Davidson in his message has neither stood still nor taken a backward step.

Below is a summary of his recommendations:

GOVERNOR DAVIDSON'S RECOMMENDATIONS IN HIS MESSAGE.

State control of local public service corporations, to regulate prices, etc.

Complete revision of the statutes regarding local public service corporations, putting a time limit on all franchises and terminating all present franchises in 1930 at the latest.

A Constitutional amendment permitting the passage of an income tax law.

Repeal of the mortgage tax law and make all credits, in excess of debts—money included—taxable.

Changes in the rate law, giving commission supervision of all transportation lines, local or interurban.

Law to put all stock issues by corporations under state supervision and preventing stockholders from getting preference on new stock of public service corporations.

Legislation to guarantee the honest handling of insurance and trust funds.

Liberal appropriations for penal and charitable institutions.

Improvement of rural schools.

Strengthening of the pure food department.

Training for youths in factory work as well as agriculture and the professions.

A co-employee liability law to protect workers in the service of corporations.

Such changes in the primary law as their own observation shall have shown the legislators to be desirable.

In spite of the fact that Robert M. LaFollette was to be crushed by the dignified Senate for his platform exposures of the past record of many of their number, he seems to be very much alive at Washington. When he has an opportunity to expose a greater number we may get some laws in the interests of the people. His success of last Friday in securing the passage through the Senate of the bill, limiting the hours of labor of railroad employees, is looked upon as a great legislative accomplishment. It is a great victory for a Senator when he can force his enemies to support a bill against their will and carry it, seventy to one.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE POOR BOY.
The boy whose daily companion is the skeleton of poverty and privation can find hope and inspiration in the career of the late President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Alex. Cassatt, who rose from a boy to the high official position he occupied up to the time of death. His successor, J. S. McCrea, also was a boy at the beginning of his career. Such examples, even in these days, show what can be accomplished by a boy, possessed with pluck and energy.

The tendency of this great industrial age to accumulate great wealth in a single industry calls for great executive ability and step by step, boys who started in the menial positions, have gradually risen to the top.

This applies as well in educational matters. A large number of the most brilliant educators of the age came from modest homes and were obliged to economize in every possible way during their entire college course. This is a strenuous age, but there is hope for the plodder.

LEADERS WHO LEAD.
There are leaders and leaders. For instance, there is a group of men who have been much in the public mind of late, all leaders in a way but so different in their ways of leading. Senator Tillman's claim to prominence is his brutal "courage" in saying openly about the colored race what the South very generally has long been saying, and often acting, privately. His honesty and personal integrity are respected, and he is a great drawing card even where his opinions are despised and his brutality abhorred. Tom Lawson had been a great "seller" because of his matchless of his English in writing historical fiction about men and measures in which the truth has since been shown to be worse than his fiction. Neither Tillman nor Lawson has anything to his credit, by way of doing things personally, though Tillman is responsible for a lot of evil deeds in the South, and Lawson is to be credited with a lot of good deeds inspired by his serial fiction in Everybody's.

LaFollette—Little Bob—says the worst things in the worst way, so far as conventionalities go, but he has done more things politically in his own state than any other man has ever done, in defiance of the machine, since the days of Aaron Burr. He is one of the most popular men on the platform, say whatever he may, because of his political achievements in Wisconsin, yes, and in the United States Senate, where he has done things that no other man has ever done.

Jerome, without doing much as yet, is popular in the extreme, because of the way in which he has kept up a running fire of promises to do, which has been almost as attractive to the public as though he had done some of them. He is the great leader through imagination and fascinating epigram.

Folk and Hughes are the leaders, pre-eminent in the doing of things that no one else could have done, and their political advancement has come to them without any political machinery, while LaFollette's came through the erection of political machinery of his own. These men are the greatest of their class that the world has ever seen, and they are, strange to say, so busy that they cannot be prevailed upon to sell their time for the platform or the press.

But above any of these men are three supreme leaders, Jacob Rills, Brookier T. Washington, and Ben H. Lindsey. No one of these could be elected governor, as Folk and Hughes have been; no one of these could build up a political machine as LaFollette did, no one of them could hurt epithets with Tillman and Jerome, or twist such sentences as Lawson does, and yet each has done more than any of the others. These men are leaders in the only true sense because their genius has been devoted to children. They have worked for all the future while the others have dealt blows at men and measures that are out of date and would have passed away sooner or later like any crumbling ruin. Leadership must deal with youth, never with old age. Leadership is always forward, never backward; is always toward the future. The most that can be said of the work of even Folk and Hughes is, that it is clearing away the ruins, while Rills, Washington, and Lindsey are always building into the future. They are architects and contractors for humanity. This is leadership.

Education should produce the leaders of the world.—Journal of Education.

CAR SHORTAGE.
The Chicago & North-Western Railway Company through its local agent and Division Officers at Antigo are endeavoring to induce shippers to load cars furnished, promptly; not in a day or two but the same day. Upon the theory that if 1000 cars placed for loading were treated in this manner and then unloaded in a similar manner, it would mean the turning of that equipment to the patrons at least forty-eight hours earlier.

This done it would induce and influence the volume of empty cars available to the shipper of this community that much in advance, and therefore materially benefit the people of our community. We have all read a great deal about the car shortage particularly throughout the West, and throughout the country in general. But do shippers realize what they can do to assist in reducing this car shortage? It is plainly the duty of the shipping public to make the effort. Having made the effort and accomplished something we are sure that the C. & N. W. Ry through its local agent will be mindful of our requirements and will fully reciprocate. Our local agent W. C. Riner, is making a daily canvas of the results obtained by each shipper and is keeping a record of the same and reporting to his superintendent results obtained by him. He is anxious to indicate his ability to accomplish something in this direction and we would be pleased to see our shippers do their part toward bringing about this very desirable improved method. Railroads, so G. J. Quigley says: do not want a dollar a day Car Service, but they want the car either loaded or empty.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS.
According to figures in the possession of City Health Commissioner J. M. Hogan there were 126 births, and 102 deaths in Rhinelander during the year 1900. Considering the fact that of the list of deaths, a number were accidental, Rhinelander is as healthy as any City of 2000 population in the United States. Owing to the number of births, we believe that President Roosevelt should extend the glad hand to our citizens for the support which they have given his anti-race suicide theory.

LOGGERS HAVE LABOR DIFFICULTIES.
Loggers operating in this vicinity and in fact throughout entire Northern Wisconsin are complaining of the scarcity of men for woods labor. The wages being offered in the woods this winter are the very best and yet laborers are at a premium. Just what causes this scarcity, operators are at a loss to explain, although several probable reasons have been given. One of these is, that despite the excellent accommodations afforded, a winter in the woods no longer has any charms for the men and they prefer to remain on their farms or in the cities. Not only does the scarcity of men cause the logger considerable trouble but he is confronted with another difficulty equally as perplexing. There is the tendency of the men to travel from one camp to another. At no time is the foreman sure of his men. They seem to hanker for a change of surroundings and so swift do they move that a man hired on Monday is likely to be gone by the middle of the week.

The camp foreman of the days of the ox team did not have this to contend with. The crews in those times were "sticklers." The foreman was always familiar with his men and knew how to handle them that the most work might be accomplished. But that was the day of the genuine "lumberjack" and his kind is no more. He was a hardy individual and worked from daylight to dark with a will and never once complained of the black coffee and salt pork which was his constant fare throughout the long winter. In this later day, operators, furnish the best that the market affords in the line of provisions and many of the camp menus are equal to those of our best hotels. However, many of the crew will complain regarding the board and roast the company and the cook and then leave the camp.

If this state of affairs continues it will soon be necessary for lumbermen to serve Neapolitan ice cream three times a day and furnish each man with a napkin and finger bowl. All this to retain the men and keep them good natured.

LO POSES AS SWINDLER.
It appears that the "noble red man" can now trot in the same class with some of his foxy white brothers as the following would indicate:

Ed. Greengrass, a Chippewa Indian living on the Black River reservation, worked a very clever swindling game on the county clerk of Clark county last week and as a result is now in jail. Cutting up a wolf's hide, his squaw very dexterously manufactured five wolf's scalps. The Indian exhibited them to the town clerk and secured a certificate from him, which was presented to the county clerk and the latter, who is a new officer, issued an order for $50 in payment as bounty. When examined, the "scalps" were found to be a very ingeniously contrived imitation of the genuine article.
